The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-7, 28 and 29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Klockeman thesis in view of Reverso (6,103,516).

Applicants' amendments to the claims are sufficient to overcome the Sosulski reference.

Klockeman is a dissertation composed of a number of parts. Starting at page 28, Klockeman discloses treating canola meal to isolate and fractionate the proteins from the meal into four protein groups (bottom of page 30). The meal is prepared by wet milling the canola meal with hexane. The proteins are subjected to solubilization at varying ionic strengths and then isolation by centrifugation. Then the protein isolate is freeze dried (page 30). This process appears to show the isolation of the protein fractions of canola meal. The claims appear to differ from Klockeman in the recitation of the use of enzymes in the process. Reverso uses alpha amylase and pectinase enzymes from bacteria to enhance the oil extraction and as a replacement for solvent extraction in oilseeds (column 1, lines 41-65 and column 2, lines 40-60). After enzyme treatment, the resulting mass is pressed and heated to neutralize the enzyme (column 6, lines 38-45). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use the enzyme process of Reverso in the process of Klockeman in order to enhance the removal of oil from canola meal without the use of solvent extraction. It is appreciated that the composition of the final protein meal is not mentioned but no unobvious or unexpected difference is seen between the canola meal of Klockeman, as treated by the Reverso enzyme process and the oil seed press product of the claim.

The rejection of the claims under 35 USC 1st and 2nd paragraph has been dropped in response to applicants' amendments to the claims.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
